WE ARE THERE

When disaster happens

Visitacion Coral salvaged what she could to build a shelter after Typhoon Haiyan destroyed her house in the Philippines. A project supported by MCC will provide Coral with materials to help make her permanent home more typhoon resistant.

When people need food and water

Ruth Nthukilu uses leaves from the moringa tree as medicine to help prevent pain. She's a member of a self-help group in Kenya involved in a project supported by MCC that promotes the use of drought resistant crops, such as the moringa tree.

When communities seek peace

Amira Išerić teaches about peacebuilding at a high school in Sarajevo, Bosnia Herzegovina. She tells her students that accepting other people's cultures and beliefs are important ingredients in a non-violent lifestyle. The program she works with is supported by MCC.

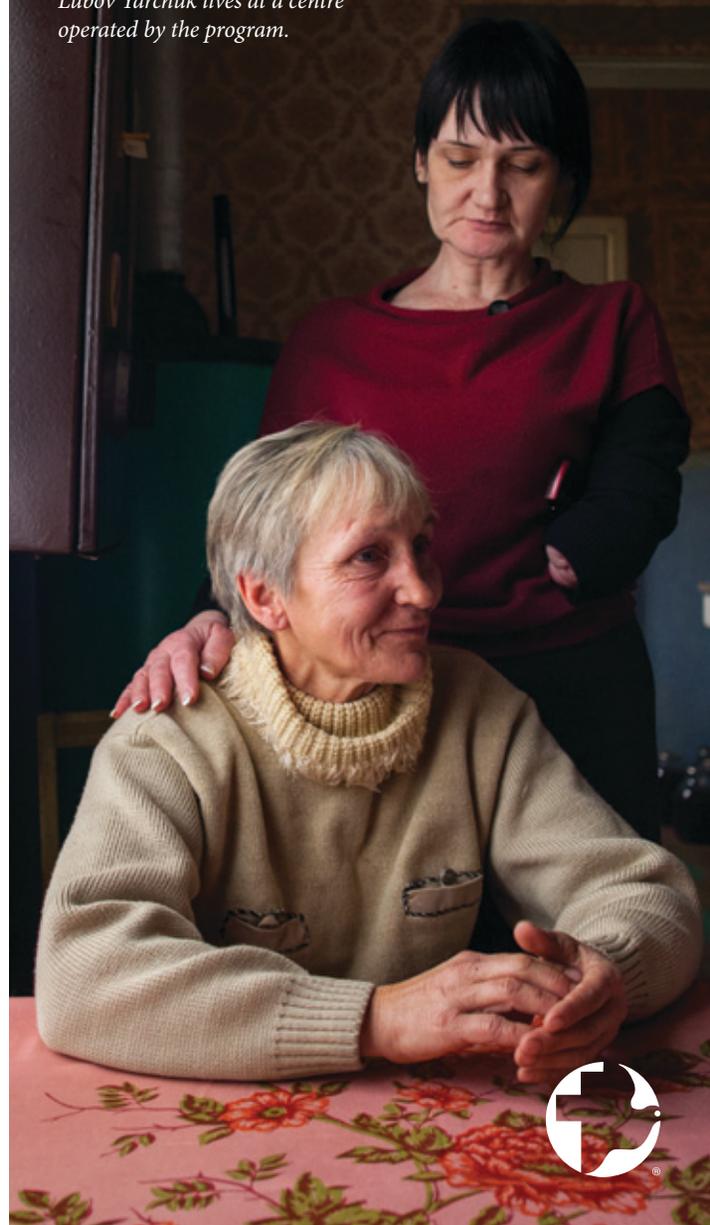

When children need to feel safe

Four-year-old Roxana lives with her parents and siblings in Bolivia. She began attending a daycare and kindergarten supported by MCC's Global Family program because it wasn't safe for her to be home while her parents went to work.

Relief, development and peace in the name of Christ

Natalia Mezentseva (standing) manages a program for former prisoners and people with HIV and AIDS in Ukraine. Lubov Yarchuk lives at a centre operated by the program.

MCC's mission is to share "God's love and compassion for all in the name of Christ by responding to basic human needs and working for peace and justice."

Our service workers fulfill this mission every day. In September, I visited a remote, impoverished community in Nepal and sat with women who spoke of the daily challenge of providing for their families. I followed as our service worker Leah and an elderly woman walked hand-in-hand, taking me to places in the community I would never see without their presence.

MCC's mission is also fulfilled in our response to disasters. The crisis in Syria continues. The value of our overall program to date exceeds $14 M, including material resources, cash contributions, government grants and projects supported through our account at the Canadian Foodgrains Bank.

About 14 million people in the Philippines were affected when Typhoon Haiyan landed in November. To date MCC has raised approximately $4.3 M in donations and has allocated most of that to our ongoing response, including the construction of typhoon resistant shelters.

MCC is present in the disasters that go virtually unnoticed in North America: the East Africa food crisis, displaced South Sudanese children, flooding in Northern Gaza, drought in Guatemala, conflict in Eastern Congo.

Whether it be a disaster, or a service worker walking with a community leader, MCC is present, sharing God's love and compassion for all in the name of Christ.
